

Investing in sustainable supply chains

Investing in sustainable supply chains is the second topic for discussion in our four-part Green Infrastructure podcast series.

In the latest episode, Aztec Group's Joane Koko Eineke is joined by Don Dimitrievich, Portfolio Manager for Energy Infrastructure Credit at Nuveen.

During this episode, they discuss:

- The growth of investment opportunities in sustainable supply chain, as technology becomes more efficient and cost-effective.
- How green energy companies are reaching parity with traditional energy-generating sources.
- How legislation such as the Inflation Reduction Act is incentivising investors to support the manufacture of components for clean energy generation.
- The rise of infrastructure debt in providing green infra managers with capital opportunities.
