The future of real estate reporting

Watch our latest roundtable discussion to find out how the real estate industry is adapting to meet the changing reporting requirements of today's investors.

Digitisation has revolutionised the way data is reported, helping to engage investors, drive transparency and support decision making. But how has the real estate industry faired so far in adapting its practices to meet the reporting and information requirements of today's investors?

We invited The Association of Real Estate Funds (AREF) and the European Association for Investors in Non-Listed Real Estate (INREV) to our recent roundtable to share their thoughts on current reporting trends and explain how industry bodies are helping to shape best practices in real estate reporting. Jukka Taskinen, Finance Director at Capman Real Estate and Richard Anthony, our Head of Real Assets in Jersey, joined the discussion to provide a GP and administrator's perspective.
