

The growing might of sustainable finance

The growing might of sustainable finance is the first in a 4-part Green Infrastructure podcast series exploring the opportunities across the depth and breadth of sustainable investments.

In this first episode, Aztec Group's Katrina Magsino is in conversation with Laetitia Hamon, head of sustainable finance at the Luxembourg Stock Exchange.

During this episode, they discuss:

- The genesis of the Luxembourg Green Exchange, the first platform for sustainable securities launched in 2016.
- How the exchange has since grown to exceed one trillion dollars, and how it plans to get to the next trillion.
- The valuable role of technology, including artificial intelligence, in verifying the credentials of sustainable investments.
- The creation of a central data hub that provides an invaluable resource for investors to make informed decisions.
