

We're proudly sponsoring the Private Funds CFO New York Forum 2024

Running between January 30-31, the Private Funds CFO New York Forum brings together the most influential decision-makers in private markets to network and share insights, exploring how fund managers are preparing for future innovations, trends, regulations, and the current market conditions.

Aztec Group CEO, Kathryn Purves, will be moderating a panel session discussing the key takeaways from the recent Private Funds CFO Insights 2024, produced in partnership with the Aztec Group. Kathryn will be joined by Brookfield Asset Management's Jaspreet Dehl, Centre Partners' Kelly Hurley and Blue Owl Capital's Jennifer Brouse, where the panel will explore:

- The Fundraising Landscape - despite current challenging market conditions, 8 out of 10 respondents said they are already raising a fund, or plan to within a year.
- Technology - The modest results towards technology in the survey throw into focus the disconnect between how fast technology is advancing and how painstakingly slow it can be to integrate it effectively into a business.
- Outsourcing - Given the growing complexities around fund management, it's perhaps unsurprising that 7 out of 10 funds are now being outsourced to a specialist fund administrator.

Read more about the insights from this report on our designated webpage.

The two-day event will offer unrivalled networking opportunities and content. A number of Aztec Group representatives will be attending the conference. If you'd like to set up a meeting, please contact Dave Naab.